Political Indoctrination

CONFIDENTIAL

25X1

1. There was no fixed schedule for political indoctrination at the Porananiski (16-15-17-1-14-1-14-9-18-11-9) Pulp Factory. However, on occasions, men came from the district (Kuyōk) party or from the provincial (Chu) party to the factory and delivered speeches to the factory employees. Following are the dates and the contents of the speeches

- A. [redacted] Commenting on the then current situation in China, a member of the district (Kuyōk) party spoke to a gathering of approximately 3,000 trade union members, stating that the Communist Party of China would soon win the victory. Referring to the achievements made in the people's economic programs in Communist nations, he explained the conditions for the successful implementation of the three-year or five-year people's economic programs.
- B. [redacted] A member of the district (Kuyōk) party delivered a speech to the effect that everybody had to be united around the Soviet Union and that there was no need to mind the issue of nationality.
- C. [redacted] A Korean and a Russian from the provincial (Chu) party spoke to a gathering of approximately 3,000 factory workers to the effect that South Korea had launched an unprovoked invasion of North Korea, consequently, putting the Communist nations into the straits, and that the American imperialists were arming the colonial peoples and prolonging the war.
- D. [redacted] A member of the district (Kuyōk) party spoke for approximately 30 minutes to the effect that the people's armed forces of China were fighting, arms for arms, against the UN Armed Forces along the Korean front.
- E. [redacted] There was a speech to the effect that the UN Armed Forces, because of their inferior armed might, had asked for an armistice.
- F. [redacted] A man from the provincial (Chu) Party spoke to a gathering of approximately 3,000 trade union members, for approximately one (1) hour, stating that now that the People's Armed Forces had won the victory over the UN Armed Forces, no armed forces would be able to invade the People's Republic in the future.
- G. [redacted] The secretary of the district (Kuyōk) party spoke to workers, who were about to return to North Korea, after six (6) years of labor, praising their results and asking them to put the zeal they had manifested during those six (6) years, into the jobs they would undertake at home, for the development of Communist nations.

Communists and their Activities

9. In the city of Porananiski (Sakhalin), and in P'yōngyang, there were loudspeakers installed on telephone poles, approximately 4 - 5 meters above the ground, and at intervals of 100 - 150 meters. These loudspeakers were beaming Communist broadcasts to the general public.
10. [redacted] in Porananiski, the workers were forced to work three (3) to four (4) hours overtime a day, under the pretext of exceeding the three-year people's economic program in a reduced period of time. The workers proposed that this overtime work system be abolished through their trade league, but to no avail.

11. According to hearsay, all religious activities have been stopped and all superstitious rites have been abolished.

[redacted]
the shortage of food was giving the Communist a hard time.
